

Adventurous Activity Guide qualifications: Requirements and process

This document is updated to reflect the changes introduced in 2020 with the National Adventurous Activities Framework version 11.1, and supersedes previous versions.

Since 2018, Leaders wishing to lead most adventurous activities have needed to be appointed as an Adventurous Activity Guide. To be eligible for appointment you must meet some core requirements and achieve the relevant VET Units of Competency for the activity area in which you wish to lead.

All adventurous activity qualifications form additional skillsets to complement your existing Scouting role, allowing you to assist or lead more activities and act as a mentor for verification of the Outdoor Adventure Skills. However, only adults holding a Certificate of Proficiency (CoP) can be appointed as an AA Guide, because they need to be responsible for the welfare of youth members. Rover Scouts and other adults without a CoP can still complete all the training, however Assistant Guide is the highest appointment available until a CoP is attained.

So what is the process to become an Adventurous Activity Guide?

The process for becoming an Adventurous Activity Guide can seem complicated, but can be broken down into a series of steps. Some of them are simply part of your Adult Leader training, while others are specific to adventurous activities.

1 Complete your Scouting Youth Program Leader training to the Certificate of Proficiency stage, which includes:

a Complete all the relevant on-demand training outdoor skills modules. The list of modules can be found later in this document.

b Have completed (either now or in the past) one of the following:

- Scouting Adventure course, or
- Trained Participant Bushwalking course or Recognition of Proficiency document, or
- Basic Outdoor Skills course or Recognition of Proficiency document, or
- Basic Scout Bushwalking course, or
- Activity Guide Basic Sectional Techniques course, or
- Bushwalking Level 1 course or Recognition of Proficiency document.

2 Complete the AA Assistant Guide Core and AA Guide Core courses, or equivalent.

---

3 You need to get Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) for some core units of competency. Provide evidence of your skills and experience since you did the courses listed above. This shows that you've actually been getting out and running adventurous activities since your training. There's more detail about what evidence you need listed below under 'Core Skills'.

4 You need to brush up on your training skills. Have completed (either now or in the past) one of the following:

- Adult Training & Development (ATD) Introductory course, or
- (previously) Train the Trainer - Training Methods course and a Personal Leader Advisor course.

This one- or two-day course teaches you the skills needed to mentor others, and provides a pathway to a future trainer role if you wish.

---

5 Ensure your Provide First Aid qualification is current.

---

6 You need some technical, activity-specific units. This differs for each activity and level of qualification. The evidence you need is similar to what you need for step 3, above, but it needs to be related to your specific activity.

7 Complete a SAIT Enrolment Form [get one from your local Training Office] and send it to training@scoutsvictoria.com.au. Submit your evidence to your appointed SAIT Assessor, who will assess your evidence against the standards, and talk you through any further evidence required.

8 Adventurous Activity Guides (and Assistant Guides) are appointed by the Branch. Completing all training required to be eligible for appointment as an AA Guide doesn't guarantee that you will be appointed, so it's worth checking with the State Leader for your activity area before you start.

1a. On-Demand training

You need to finish your On-Demand training (formerly e-Learning). Fortunately, if you're an Adult Leader you've probably already done much of this. Remember that if you've already completed a module you don't need to do it again for a Guide appointment. However, you may want to refresh your memory if it has been a while. Please check the list below, because there are a few extra AA modules that you might not have completed as part of your Leader of Youth training.

Level of training	module name	module code
Scouting Adventure	Preliminary ScoutSafe	SA SAFE
	WHS for Scouting	SP WHS
	Elementary Navigation	SA E NAVIGATE
	Navigation Skills	SA NAVIGATE
	Operate Communication Systems	SA COMM
	Camping Skills	SA SITE
	Equipment for Lightweight Camping	SA EQUIP
	Bushwalking Skills	SA BUSHPLAN
	Plan and Guide Outdoor Activities	SA GUIDE
	Minimal Environmental Impact Practices	SA IMPACT
	Interpreting Weather	SA WEATHER
	Group Facilitation	SA GROUP
	Responding to Emergencies	SA EMERG A
Adventurous Activities	Coordinating Emergency Response	AA EMERG B
	Planning for Outdoor Activities	SA OUTDOOR PLAN
	Safe Practices in Scouting	AA SAFETY

3. Core skills

You need to complete a number of core units from the outdoor recreation training package.

What units do I need?

Unit code	Unit name
Assistant Guide Core Skills
HLTWHS001	Participate in workplace health and safety
SISOFLD002	Minimise environmental impact
PUAOPE013	Operate communications systems and equipment
SIXEMR001	Respond to emergency situations
SISOPLN001	Finalise operation of outdoor recreation activities
SISOPLN004	Identify hazards, assess and control risks for outdoor recreation activities
SISOPLN005	Interpret weather and environmental conditions for outdoor recreation activities
HLTAID011	Provide first aid
Guide Core Skills
SISXFAC001	Maintain equipment for activities
SISXCCS001	Provide quality service

SISOPLN002	Plan outdoor activity sessions
SISXCAI006	Facilitate groups
TAEDEL301	Provide work skill instruction
BSBCMM411	Make presentations

These units are mandatory requirements for all AA Guides. The content for these is covered in (step 2 and 4):

- AA Assistant Guide Core course; and
- AA Guide Core course; and
- ATD Introductory course (see step 4 below)

How do I get these units?

You must provide evidence of your skills and experience for the units you are seeking. Evidence must be valid, authentic, current and sufficient. You'll see that these units cover many of the same topics as on demand training. The idea is that on demand training gives you the basic knowledge; you go out and apply it; and then you provide evidence that you've been applying it in the real world.

What evidence do I need to provide?

- An up-to-date logbook showing that you've led at least five activities (this is a core, non-negotiable requirement). If you don't have a logbook, click here for a template: <https://scoutsvictoria.com.au/activities-events/>
- Something to show that you can follow occupational health and safety policies.
- Something that demonstrates you can interpret weather conditions out in the field.
- Something that demonstrates you can use communications equipment in the field.
- Something that demonstrates you can maintain equipment over five service periods.
- Three Activity Plans as evidence that you can plan different types of outdoor recreation activities. The Activity Plans should collectively include:
  - a program
  - an equipment list
  - a communications plan
  - predicted weather and environmental hazards
  - roster or roles for activity assistants
  - minimal impact strategies for environmental, cultural and heritage considerations
  - any relevant policies, permits, notification & booking forms.
- Three risk assessments you've done for different types of activities and/or clientele (perhaps to go with your three Activity Plans).
- Evidence showing your leadership skills with a small group.
- Planning for, and actually minimising, your party's environmental impact including cultural and heritage considerations.
- Your ability to respond to an emergency.
- Briefing notes and post-activity review notes.

Pro tip: If you don't have a logbook, one way you can start it is by going back through your photo collection to jog your memory.

This seems like a long list, but it's really just what you'd do to run any activity for youth in the outdoors. It's not rocket science.

You should also include supporting information including some combination of the following:

- pictures/videos of you doing the activity
- the names and contact details of people who can verify your skills
- certificates from relevant qualifications or training
- your Scout training record
- third-party references or verification from peers
- direct observation or supervision
- performance reviews

- attending technical training, or
- upgrading of training or qualifications.

How do I provide this evidence?

You must provide your evidence electronically. That means that your evidence, which you’ve put a bit of work into, can’t get lost and can be shared easily. You should number each item of evidence so you can easily specify which evidence relates to which competency; for example, the first thing you’re asked for is a logbook. You would number your logbook 01 and write ‘refer to evidence 01’, or something like that. If you have lots of photos and video, it’s best to transfer this using something like Google Drive or Dropbox instead of email.

What does ‘current’ mean?

‘Current’ generally means within the last three years.

However, you can still include evidence older than three years in your logbook, because that helps to demonstrate to your assessor that you have longer experience of doing this activity. Of course, the older the evidence the less weight it has.

What does ‘valid’ mean?

Your evidence has to be related to the units you are being assessed for. This can be different for the core units (step 3) than for the activity-specific technical units (step 6). For example, let’s say you’re an abseiler. For the core units, you can provide examples of your leadership and party-management skills which you gained while on a bushwalk or a canoe trip because they are generic. For the technical Guide Abseiling units, however, you’d need to show that you specifically led an abseiling activity, not just any adventurous activity.

For your logbook, though, still provide evidence of other activities. There’s a lot of cross-over between them; for example, a canoe trip and a bushwalk both require you to pack lightweight non-perishable food into a small space; abseiling (natural) and rock-climbing share common principles in anchor set-up.

What does authentic mean?

That it is your evidence of an activity that you led or participated in and not someone else’s evidence.

What does sufficient mean?

That the evidence supplied is enough for an assessor to make a fully informed decision.

What is not evidence?

An email from your mate saying how he’s known you since high school and you’re a really good bloke/chick, is not evidence. This is terrific evidence that you are a good bloke/chick, but unfortunately says nothing about your ability to lead an activity.

4. Training skills

You need to be able to impart information to your participants, so we require you to have some training units. These units are covered in:

- Adult Training & Development – Introductory course; or
- Training Methods plus Personal Leader Advisor course

Unit code	Unit name
TAEDL301	Provide work skill instruction
BSBCM411	Make presentations

Note that this may be included in AA Guide Core Skills course from 2022; check with your local Commissioner first.

Individuals with a training or instructional background may be able to find an alternative pathway with their SAIT Assessor (see step 8 below).

5. First aid

You are required to also have a current first aid certificate for appointment as a Guide.

Unit code	Unit name
HLTAID011	Provide first aid

Most higher first aid qualifications within the HLT training package are also suitable.

Wilderness and remote first aid

Some qualifications require you to have a remote or wilderness first aid skillset.

A remote first aid course includes:

- Provide first aid in remote locations (SISOFLD004), or
- Provide first aid in remote or isolated site (HLTAID013)

The wilderness first aid skillset (SISSS00126), or a wilderness first aid course, contains three units:

- Provide first aid (HLTAID011),
- Provide first aid in remote locations (SISOFLD004), and
- Coordinate emergency response (SIXEMR002).

6. Activity-specific skills

6 In addition to the core skill areas, a Guide must obtain the VET units of competency relevant to that qualification. To be appointed you also need all of the units below that level within the same Activity Grouping. For example, to be appointed as an Assistant Guide in Bushwalking Difficult Tracked Environments, you would need Bushwalk in difficult tracked environments (SISOBWG002) and Navigate in difficult tracked environments (SISOFLD007), from the Safe Participant and Trained Participant levels, plus some extra logged experience.

The units required for each Activity Grouping are defined in the National Adventurous Activities Framework (NAAF). At the end of this document is an extract of the NAAF version 11.1, with the activity groupings for Guide activity-specific skill sets. Please refer to the latest version of the NAAF for the most current requirements.

What does 'Add to logbook from [previous qualification]' mean?

For some quals, there are no extra VET units required; instead, we need to see that you've recorded additional experience in your logbook. How much experience will vary, but generally it will need to be about six days worth of activity. That could be gained in one big six-day event, or it could be spread across twelve half-day trips, depending on the activity.

7. SAIT Enrolment and Appointment of a SAIT Assessor

7 Once you've collected your evidence, apply to your local training office to be enrolled for assessment.

You need to enrol as a student in our Registered Training Organisation, known as the Scouts Australia Institute of Training. On the form tick the box for Guide in the appropriate activities for which you're seeking a guide appointment. You should also consider what is realistically achievable at this stage. Are you ready to be assessed for the Guide units of competency? Are you able to collect the evidence required for steps 3-6 below for each activity area? You can always pick up new qualifications in the future to expand your guide skillset.

As part of enrolment a SAIT Assessor will be appointed. This person will review your evidence and may request clarification or more information or evidence. Sometimes they might ask you to demonstrate your skills in the field. You can make this step in the process easier by ensuring that your evidence is sufficient. Once all the evidence of your skills is appropriate, they should award you the VET units of competency.

8. Appointment as an Adventurous Activity Guide

8 Doing all of this is not a guarantee that you'll be appointed as a Guide, so it's a good idea to check first! The process can vary by Branch, but in Victoria, Adventurous Activity Guides are recommended by the relevant State Leader for that activity to the State Commissioner - Adventurous Activities for appointment.

Glossary

Adventurous Activity Guide	A State-appointed position which allows the person to lead adventurous activities for youth members in the activity area/s named on their certificate.
Assistant Leader Trainer (formerly Instructor)	A National Appointment to the National Training Team allowing the person to conduct training courses for youth and adult members in the activity area/s named on their certificate.
Subject Matter Expert	A Technical Expert in a particular area of activity provision.
